Gould Academy Commencement

On Thursday morning, June 9, at the William Bingham Gymnasium, 38 members of the Class of 1938 of Gould Academy were graduated before a capacity crowd of relatives, friends and alumni. Led by Marshal Herbert Foote '39, the Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen preceded the Seniors in the Graduation procession from Academy Hall to the Gymnasium. The program was opened with the invocation given by Rev. Dr. Herbert T. Wallace. The address of welcome was delivered by Helen Elizabeth Crouse, following which the Twentieth Century Club Banner was transferred by Royden Keddy to Dana Brooks, President of the Junior Class. The gift of the Class of 1938 was a flag of the State of Maine with appropriate standard and decorations which was presented to the Academy by Edward Robertson and accepted for the Trustees by Ellery C. Park, the treasurer of the Executive Committee of the Board. Following the "National Emblem March" by the Academy Orchestra, Edward Caccavo '38 gave a violin solo, Handel's "Largo."

Under the direction of Miss Ruth Leavengood, instructor in Speech and Dramatics, a pageant, "The Tower of Memories," by Walter Bissell and Miss Leavengood, was presented by the Senior Class. The work was beautifully done and keenly appreciated by all as it held especial interest to all students, alumni, and friends of Gould Academy, depicting as it did much of the history of Gould Academy during its 102 years of existence. The Academy is deeply indebted to Miss Ruth Leavengood for her untiring efforts to obtain authentic material for the pageant and to Dr. Frank E. Hanscom, Principal Emeritus, for the fund of valuable and accurate information of Gould Academy which he placed at the disposal of the school. The cast:

Prologue, Royden Keddy
 Memory of 1938, Bryant Bean
 Memory of 1836, Nancy Philbrook
 Memory of 1842, Elizabeth Lyon
 Memory of 1852, Edward Robertson
 Memory of 1877, Ethel Jodrey
 Memory of 1897, Donald Brown
 Memories of the turn of the century, Patricia Goodwin, Florice Grover, Robert Keniston
 Memory of 1911, Vivian Berry
 Memory of 1933, John King
 Spirit of Gould, Christie Thurston

Following the pageant the Academy orchestra presented "Victor Herbert's Favorites." The valedictory was given by John King, following which the following awards were announced by Principal Philip S. Sayles: The Class of 1938 had her numerals engraved on the Scholarship Cup presented by the Class of 1935 as the class maintaining the highest average rank during the past year. John Robbins bina King has the honor of having his name engraved on the Honor Shield, the gift of the Class of 1930, as the individual student of the graduating class maintaining the highest rank throughout the course. Through the kindness of a friend the following awards are made by the faculty for outstanding work in the following activities: Athletics, Helen Crouse and Edward Robertson; Debating, Nancy Philbrook and Bryant Bean; Dramatics, Bryant Bean; Citizenship, Norman Johnson. John King, Lydia Nteeros and Isabel Tuell have their names engraved on the special Honor Shield as having maintained an average rank of 90% or better during their course at the Academy. Senior Athletic Medals, based on points earned in the various sports, scholarship and high sportsmanship, were awarded to the following girls of the Senior Class, Vivian Berry, Helen Crouse and Nancy Philbrook.

The following members of the Senior Class have been elected to the membership of the National Honor Society: John King, Nancy Philbrook, Edward Robertson, Keene Swan, and Royden Keddy.

Following the awards of honors, diplomas were conferred on the following 38 Seniors by Principal Philip S. Sayles: Valedictorian John King, Salutatorian Keene Swan, George Adams, Bryant Bean, Ina Bean, Arthur Bennett, Vivian Berry, Hazel Billings, Jessie Brooks, Arlene Brown, Donald Brown, Edward Caccavo, Jane Chaplin, Helen Crouse, Patricia Goodwin, Florice Grover, Arthur Haselton, Ralph Hatch, William Howe, Phyllis Hunt, Ethel Jodrey, Norman Johnson, Royden Keddy, Robert Keniston, Elizabeth Lyon, Brooks McFarland, Lydia Nteeros, Nancy Philbrook, Lewis Porter, Edward Robertson, Jane Runyon, Geraldine Stanley, Mary Stearns, Jean Sullivan, Christie Thurston, Isabel Tuell, Elaine Warren, and Barbara Whittemore.

Exercises were closed with the benediction by the Rev. M. A. Gordon.

The annual Alumni Luncheon was held in the Marian True Gehring Students' Home at 1 o'clock with an attendance of over 200 alumni, speakers and friends. President Eugene Van Den Kerckhoven, acting as Toast Master, introduced Professor Brooks Quimby of Bates College as guest speaker, choosing as his subject, "Consumers and Producers." Reports from the five-year classes were given from the following: 1903, Mrs. Widd Twaddle; 1908, Miss Emily Tuell; 1913, Arthur Cummings; 1918, Robert Hastings; 1923, John Fox; 1933, Mrs. Wilbur Myers; 1938, Bryant Bean. Mr. Van also called on Principal Philip S. Sayles and Principal Emeritus Frank E. Hanscom. Edward Caccavo '38 gave a violin solo, accompanied by Prof. Anto Eugene Mante.

Officers for next year were elected as follows: President, Florence Carter Tibbitts; Vice-President, Lawrence Philbrook; Secretary, Maxine Clough; Treasurer, Carrie Wight; Executive Committee, Mrs. Mary Wilson, Mrs. William Hastings, Ruth Hastings Chapman, Esther Burris, Lucia Van Den Kerckhoven, and Edwin Brown. The dining room was prettily decorated in blue iris and yellow snapdragons.

Following the Alumni Luncheon the Alumni vs. Gould baseball game was played on the athletic field. The result was a 5-5 tie in a 10-inning contest.

A Silver Anniversary Tea was given at the Principal's Home at 4:30 in honor of the 25-year class. Miss Eva Bean and Mrs. John Howe Ring, Mrs. Oliver Fales, Mrs. Myron Morrill, Mrs. Eli Grover, Mrs. John Meserve, Mrs. Ralph Abbott, Mrs. Adeline Brown, and Mrs. Delia Conroy. The decorations were in school colors, blue iris and yellow snapdragons.

The Senior Reception was held at 8:30 in the William Bingham Gymnasium. Those in the receiving line were: Principal and Mrs. Philip Sayles, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Hanscom, Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Park, Mrs. Lorene Kitchin, Ernest Walker, Edward Robertson, President of the Senior Class, Christie Thurston, Secretary, and members of the Senior Class. Music was furnished by the Becker Collegians, of which Richard Young '37 is a member, and dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock.

BETHEL COMES FROM BEHIND TO DEFEAT ROXBURY

Bethel defeated a strong Roxbury team 7 to 6 in their first league game of the year. In the first two innings the Roxbury team got their six runs while Bethel had only two. Behind the timely pitching of Quimby, Roxbury only got four scattered hits after the second inning.

Pratt and Keddy starred for the locals. Pratt got a hit with the bases loaded to get two runs and also to clinch the game. Keddy played exceptionally fine ball in his first full game for the Bethel team by getting seven assists without an error.

Local School Savings Reaches New High

School Savings in the village schools had a very good year, in fact the best since it was started. Gifts amounting to $99 were given by the Bethel Savings Bank.

The Primary School started with 77 pupils registered in School Savings and 61 received the $1 gift. The Grammar School registered 45 and received $38.

CLARENCE E. BARKER

Clarence E. Barker passed away at his home near West Bethel Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Barker was born in Bethel Nov. 17, 1861, the son of John and Mary Rose Barker. He has spent the greater part of his life on the farm on which he died. He received his education in the schools of Bethel and attended Gould Academy.

Survivors include his sister, Miss Alice Barker, and a nephew, Harry Head, both of West Bethel; and a niece, Mrs. Ruth of San Francisco, Calif.

Funeral services will be held at his late home Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, D. S. T.

Clayton Fossett and Wilbur Myers are on a camping trip at Middle Dam.

MRS. CHARLES ROBERTSON

Mrs. Addie Robertson, wife of Charles Robertson, died suddenly Tuesday afternoon at her home in Newry. She had been ill several years.

Mrs. Robertson was born Oct. 10, 1878, at Errol, N. H., the daughter of Jacob and Sophie Illsely Corbett.

Survivors include her husband, a daughter, Mrs. Roy Moore of Bethel, a son, Wade Robertson of Newry, and a brother, Leslie Corbett of Newry.

Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock D. S. T. at Greenleaf's Funeral Home. Burial will be at the Powers Cemetery in Newry.

Miss Lucy Fox is in the Rumford Community Hospital.

Lafayette's Seventy-Mile Ride

On August 28, 1778, the youthful Marquis de Lafayette rode from Providence to Boston, a distance of nearly seventy miles, in what was then the remarkable time of seven hours. His speed was justified by the urgency of his errand. Count D'Estaing had withdrawn the French fleet from co-operation with the American land forces in Rhode Island, under General Sullivan, which were seriously hampered, if not endangered, by this sudden departure of their allies. Lafayette's purpose was to urge the return of the French vessels to Narragansett bay. D'Estaing convinced him of the inadequacy of his naval forces, but offered to lead his troops by land to co-operate with the Americans.

The Stripes on Our Flag

During the formative period of this country considerable thought and discussion were given to the matter of the arrangement of the flag. It was generally agreed that the various states should be represented in the design and one of the first propositions was to add a stripe for every state which was added to the Union. When two stripes were added it was realized that the flag might grow to a shape which would not prove agreeable, being deeper than the length which would be all out of order. There was no known flag of such a shape and as the states were added the flag would become unshapely. It was then decided to add stars in the field as alterations were demanded.

THE LOW DOWN —from— HICKORY GROVE

Our latest slogan, it is lending and spending—sounds great. But from the little that I savvy about it, I do not know any place where you can go broke quicker, than by lending—except it is spending.

And our old idea of saving 10 cents for a rainy day, it is now next to illegal. And for our old age, we are to lean on Social Security. Slogans are our dish.

And maybe you
have an off-spring
or 2 around the house, and they do some goofy things and get into jams and one thing and another,
and you almost think they are hopeless, sometimes. But they are amateurs when it comes to comparing 'em to what is going on under the big tent, at Wash.

Things that most people want done down there, they will not do it. And things you do not want 'em to do—it is vice versa. And if you have ever been on a farm, I do not need to explain to you about a mule.

History, it used to be a sort of dry subject, but boy, present day
doings when they get into the book,
they will make Walt Disney huddle.
Yours, with the low down,
JO SERRA

below the cemetery.

Miss Jessie Brooks is visiting Miss Joyce Abbott for several days.

WILTED!

Wars Easily Settled in Days of King Louis XI

History proves that even in centuries gone by they had sensible ideas about settling wars, and an historian discovered how King Louis XI, in 1453, put an end to the Hundred Years' war.

He asked the king of England to come over for a talk at Amiens, promising that the royal visitor and his entourage would be treated as honored guests. And they were, according to a writer in Pearson's London Weekly.

As soon as the English arrived (the king took the precaution of bringing his own army with him)
all were invited to a huge open-air picnic. Three hundred carts of wine drove up and the tables were lavishly piled with cooked meats. By the time the party had been going on for a few days no one could see the least sense in continuing the war.

"Thanks to these proceedings,"
the ancient chronicler of the Amiens conference drily records, "negotiations were rendered easy and speedy." A seven years' truce was signed, and the armies went home,
to fight no more.

The spirit of peace, in fact, was so much in the air that the English
king obtained a large sum to cover his expenses entailed in attending the conference.

A firm in Yorkshire has discovered a process by means of which glass can be spun like textiles, and produced on a commercial scale.

Production of a glass that shuts out heat is promised in Prague, Czechoslovakia, as the result of a discovery of a Bohemian inventor.

Eyeglasses that enable you to read a book on your lap while still apparently looking straight ahead

The SNAPSHOT GUILD SUMMER PICTURE STORIES

in picturing summer romances, keep the romance! Don't let your subjects pose stiffly or smile at the camera!

IT'S a camera axiom that every picture should tell a story. Will you remember that this summer when you are snapping pictures of friends and their summer activities?

Nothing is easier than to get a member of your crowd to "stand over by that bush while I snap your picture." But that sort of picture-taking doesn't produce the best kind of pictures—because such pictures
don't "say" anything.

It's easy to go on a picnic with Bill and Janet Smith and get snapshots of them standing by a bush or a tree, smiling for the camera. But it's more fun, and makes better pictures, to catch Janet feeding Bill a huge slice of chocolate cake, or get Bill helping Janet over a barbedwire fence, or get the two of them, heads close together, laughing as they set the picnic table or cloth.

Such pictures tell stories—and there are hundreds of such story-picture chances on every summer jaunt. Try your hand at picturing summer fun and summer romance (there's always plenty of it) from a "story" viewpoint. Don't let your subjects appear camera-conscious—catch them when they're busy doing something, and watch your pictures
"wake up and live."

There's no need to waste film, but if it takes two or three pictures, or more, to tell a story properly—go ahead and shoot them. Film is not expensive, so don't risk missing a good picture.

Dew Used by Engineers

of Old to Split Rocks

Scientists and engineers have been exceedingly puzzled at the manner in which the ancients obtained the huge blocks of marble and stone with which they fashioned the temples and palaces still standing after 10,000 years. The type of stone used can hardly be broken with all the force of modern machinery yet the ancient builders of Egypt and Babylonia could raise pyramids and palaces which are better built than skyscrapers and will last ten times as long, asserts a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Pharaoh's engineers had one powerful ally to use in splitting rock hard as iron. That was the dew which night brought to the Nile valley. For with modern engines and gunpowder men do not realize the force moisture can apply, but these builders certainly did. A huge block of rough stone would be unearthed and cleaned. The chief engineer would decide on the line on which the stone was to be split. With great care and patience small indentations would be cut in the surface.
Dried wooden wedges would be driven into the stone. Then the heavy Nile dew would take a hand. Penetrating into the small hair-like structures of the wood the dampness of night would cause the wedge to swell. Each wedge exerts literally thousands of pounds pressure—ten wedges exert a million pounds pressure on the rock and one night,
the stone gives as give it must, and the block splits along the line of wedges ready for use to make a pyramid, a sphinx or a princess' palace.

It is reported that negotiations are under way for the purchase of the Twaddle property on Church Street where it is planned to build a boys' dormitory.

Ellas Robinson and a party of friends from Massachusetts were at the Kennebago Lakes Camps fishing last week. Some fine trout were brought back.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hanscom and Miss Dorothy Hanscom left Tuesday to spend the summer at their home at Mechanic Falls. They have as their maid, Mrs. Elizabeth Schultz of Berlin.

Walter Grover, Rupert Grover,
Maurice Brooks, Edward Wheeler,
Robert Moore, and the Misses Verna Grover, Kathleen Wight, and Katharine Loomis climbed Mount Washington Friday.

By a mistake in the graduation report of the eighth grade last week the name of Elizabeth Gorman was omitted; Miss Gorman received a penmanship award for improvement in penmanship.

A family party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bartlett Saturday evening. Guests were Mrs. Chester French Jr. and son of Norway, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Tift
and son Bobby of South Bethel,
and Charles C. Hutchins of Crown Point, N. Y.

Twelve members were present at the annual meeting of the board of trustees of Gould Academy Friday at Bethel Inn. The members were luncheon guests of Dr. George B.
Farnsworth, president of the board.
The same officers were re-elected.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Mason have arrived in Bethel after a most enjoyable winter and spring spent in California and vicinity and in visiting many places of interest
during their motor trip East.

Mrs. Edward Lyon, Miss Frances
Carter, Miss Grace Carter and Miss Catherine Senton spent the first of the week in Plymouth, N. H., where they attended the graduation exercises at Plymouth Normal School.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Jordan, Mr.

OXFORD COUNTY UNITED PARISH

We go to Albany on Sunday, Mr. Merrill and his Thirteen Class and Band will have charge of the program. There will be an "All-the-Parish" service. We invite all the people of the Parish to attend. The service will begin at 10:30 a. m., instead of 11 o'clock as already announced. Please note this change and let your friends and neighbors know of it. The regular services of worship in the other churches will not be held. Plan to come and hear Mr. Merrill and also worship together on the lovely hillside of Albany at Hunt's Corner. We are looking forward to a very large crowd from Bethel, Greenwood and Norway, as well as from the Parish. Bring a "basket-lunch." Coffee will be served by the Albany Circle. The band will give us a concert after the morning service.

We would like to call your attention to an eventful evening which will take place on Tuesday evening, June 21st. Rev. James MacKillop of Bryant Pond is going to be with us and sing some of his favorite Scotch songs. So plan to be present at the North Waterford Circle Supper that evening for a good time.

By this time, Mr. and Mrs. Bull and their family will have completed over half of their trip to the Middle West. They are motoring to Beloit College, Beloit, Wis., where they will attend the Congregational-Christian General Conference which is being held from the 15th to the 22nd, as delegates from the Union Association and the Maine Conference. Frank Morse of Waterford is also attending the Young People's Conference at Rockland, Ill., as a delegate from this section representing the Maine Conference.

"If you could spend an hour with me in the accident ward of the large hospital where I am stationed, you would understand why I don't see anything smart about speeding."

Figures released by The Travelers Insurance Company indicate that nearly 37 per cent of all fatal accidents are caused by exceeding the speed limit. My experience has taught me something that these figures do not indicate—that the worst accidents, those involving almost hopeless injuries, nearly always result from accidents where high speed was a factor.

CHAPTER I

"The mailman is coming, Elizabeth! Will you ask Hepsy to go down the lane and meet him at the corner? Now he is crossing the lower bridge and has passed the Henshaws'. Strange how few letters they have, considering that their children are all married and scattered. The Etheridges always manage to hold him at their house, the horse knows the place and settles on three legs. Clara sent so many picture postals during her travels that, now that she is at home, she receives as many. I wonder if she saw a better man over the sea than Philip Knox was, or is, it accounts speak true?"

Ira Vance pulled himself to his feet. When freed from his deep armchair he moved slowly to the window with the aid of his cane, where he fell to polishing the frost from the panes with quick, nervous strokes, and a vigor that, judging from his bent shoulders and halting gait, would have seemed impossible. As he straightened himself to his full height he beckoned to his wife, that she might see for herself the lovely valley picture framed by the window, and for the moment it seemed as if the clear tracery of frost flakes had been transferred to the masses of his steel-white hair.

"Hepsy has gone without the telling; I heard her close the door, but—" and Mrs. Vance checked herself as if uncertain how to word what she would say, "but, father, if I were you, I wouldn't set too much store on getting a letter from Emery this week. It is only the seventeenth, so that it yet lacks eight days of Christmas. You know, as he has often said, that Emery is always so busy at the end of the year, and I don't suppose that this is any different from all those other years since he has come home for the holidays."

"Let me see, how long is it?" said Mrs. Vance. "This is 1913. Tommy was turning three years then, and Bess so young a baby that Emery thought it unwise for Eleanor to travel with her, so he came alone. Tommy was eight his last birthday—yes, Emery has not been at home longer than a few hours between trains since 1903. As if she felt that the tinge of reproach in her voice was too marked, she added quickly, "But you know Eleanor has stopped over twice with the children on her way to Bar Harbor, and Emery has overwhelmed us with gifts each year."

"Overwhelmed us, yes, that is just it; sent us money when we wanted our son," Ira replied.

"It isn't that I'm ungrateful in spirit. We could do little to advance our son above giving him his education; he chose his path and has worked out his own success. But this year, this Christmas of all others, I need him so much! It seems that of late years I've always been receiving, and had naught to give that he would prize—but this year above all others he must come!"

Presently he looked up, and with a half shy smile, like that of a child to whom concealment is no longer possible, gathered Elizabeth's hands into his own.

"I've been keeping a secret even from you, mother, for the best part of six months—No, you would never guess. I've succeeded at last; I've invented something that people want, a thing that is needed!"

"Oh, father, I'm so glad!" Elizabeth cried.

Even as she spoke, the words felt heavy upon her lips, for in some form or phrase Elizabeth Vance had heard the same announcement many times during the fifteen years since her husband had dropped the old-time farming, together with work in his oak-silled rambling mill house that topped the stream above, and had been wiped from the list of small country manufacturers by one of the great industrial aggregations that for their own health prune away individual effort.

Emery, then twenty-five, was already getting his start. He had advised his father to gather together what money was left and invest it away from both land and mill. At the same time Emery had thrown himself, mind, body, heart and soul into the financial game of chance, playing it to win in spite of all obstacles human or otherwise. It was the "doing nothing" part of the change that was the losing game to Ira Vance, even though Emery promised himself to add every comfort to his parents' slender income to which the old folks could be reconciled.

For a while Ira went about the farm in a sort of nightmare, dabbling at his former work, ideas crowding his brain, but nothing focusing. Then when his best physical ability was taken from him by the crushing of his legs by the tree he was felling, his mind suddenly began to stir in new channels, and all his pent up force turned into the luring, disappointing current of invention, with its many shoals and whirlpools.

Now, day after day, Ira Vance had sat in his workshop in the rough mill shed that had its foundations in the rocky bank that once held a water wheel. Many things he designed there at his old desk, things big and little, all conceived with no lack of ingenuity, yet somehow the thing he fashioned had either been done before, or else, more pitiful still, it was out of the drastic line of present use.

"When Emery was here last, and spent that hour with me in the shop," he said, "I showed him the little churn that worked by a door spring, and the gauge to tell when a clock is running down. He hardly looked at the models. 'Curious and ingenious, if you please,' he said, 'but merely toys of no use; no one needs them. Invent something that will save labor upon an article that people must have; a screw thread cutter for pipe work, for instance. When you make something that is needed it will be time enough for me to look and listen, and, moreover, help you to a market.'"

"From that time on I seemed fairly to dream his words—'something that people must have,' until now thought has taken shape and that is one reason why Emery must come this Christmas!"

"I want Emery's children to come here, Tommy and little Bess, so that I can play Santa Claus for two real youngsters just once more, and let the Christmas tree we two have garnished year by year for memory's and each other's sake seem real again."

"Oh, Lord! How long? How long must I wait for my own flesh and blood to return to me? If our girl babies had lived, how different it might have been! Girls cling the closest."

There were tears in Elizabeth's eyes, and an unusual flush on her cheeks, as she listened. Did not Ira realize that every word he had spoken was seared into her heart long ago, but what she, still dreading and doubting, said was:

"Even if the children came, father, is it certain that we can please them? They already have everything that there is to buy; they go to children's parties every week; little Bess has a foreign governess, and Eleanor writes that the child speaks French as well as English. When Tommy penned his own letter to us last year, he told how that their Christmas tree was lighted with fifty colored electric lights, like twinkling stars, that could be turned on and off with a touch. Do you think that they would care for one of our valley pines or cedars, trimmed with silvered cones and pop-corn strings and lit only with little blinking candles? Then, too, there is Eleanor; what have we to offer her here?"

Ira glanced at Elizabeth and, settling his hands more firmly on his cane, spoke with a new decision:

"You've always claimed to have more of the sense of intuition than I, but, mark my words, Elizabeth—once get the children here and they will set more store playing house in the attic or make-believing in the shop than by all their bought contraptions."

"I tell you, mother, judging from what I read in the papers, though we don't see it hereabout, Christ's Christmas has been jostled and crowded out somewhat in places, yet it can never die as long as there is a child alive. All we need here in the Glen is new work for the parents, then will come children and more children. As to daughter-in-law Eleanor, with all her friends she lacks an older woman to commune with. She needs you, mother; she may not know it, but she does. There's some sort of hunger written in her face that I can't fathom—except that I know it isn't good for a young, comely, warm-blooded woman such as she to be so much alone husbandwise; we could not have lived in that way, Elizabeth."

"I know that her father's brother, who fostered her, once owned great estates, that she was born for a soft-cushioned life, and perhaps has it now, as that seems to be our son's present idea of love and a husband's duty. She has no living kith or kin under the sun. Do you realize, Elizabeth, that she never knew her own father or mother, so she's always lacked the first sweet of love, and it surely must make a difference to her. I want to see your arm about her, if only that she may pass its comfort on to little Bess."

"Hepsy has come back with letters in her apron!" said Elizabeth slowly.

"Nothing from Emery? Now, mother, sit you down and write again; put what I say in three separate covers; hint to Emery of my great secret, write Eleanor most urgently to come, and pen another in big letters to little Bess and Tom. Tell them what we used to do here in the Glen at Christmas when their father was a boy. Direct their letter and Eleanor's to the home, but Emery's, as usual, to the office lest otherwise it be overlooked. Then for surely we will put on each letter one of those long, blue ten-cent stamps that hurry the postman. Emery will be sure to open his letter even in business hours when he sees that extra stamp with the bicycle boy humping himself along."

"I wonder if Emery's son is like him at the same age," Ira rested his head against the high chair back, as he looked long and eagerly at the oil portrait hanging above the mantel shelf. A picture prim in drawing, yet fresh in color, or a boy of eight, with wide collar, round jacket and loose tie, thought in his eyes, but about the lips (mah's one self-made feature, it is said) a veil of uncertainty. "He was a handsome boy, Elizabeth, and a happy boy; now that he is living out his dreams, is he a happy man, I'm wondering?"

Meanwhile the first letter, unanswered, had for three days lain on the desk of a city office amid others pushed aside as of slight importance, until Kitty Mack, secretary to Emery Vance, having finished her morning's hurry work, shuffled over the pile, set her shrewd eyes upon the envelope and remembering the postmark selected it with one other for the attention of her chief.

Between the ukulele, the camera and her surrealist painting, Gracie Allen manages to keep rather busy for a gal who is supposed to be slightly on the dumb side, capable of grasping only one thing at a time.

Being the network zanie she is, no one probably ever suspected Gracie could be serious long enough to play the uke, much less draw pictures with such titles as "Dogs Gather on Street Corner to Watch Men Fight" and "Eyes Adrift as Sardines Wrench at Your Heartstrings"—and maybe she wasn't serious. But the paintings have drawn great crowds when exhibited in Hollywood and Chicago and are now scheduled for a New York showing. Anyway, Gracie must have had fun doing them.

That "Attorney at Law" daily drama starring Jim Ameche and Frances Carlson, with Dolores Gillen, Connie Osgood and other radio stars featured in the cast, is so popular it has been moved on an afternoon spot on the NBC-Blue network. Now heard at 1 p. m., C. S. T., daily. Makes a great afternoon radio fare as it follows the popular "Betty and Bob," "Arnold Grimm's Daughter," "Valiant Lady" and "Hymns of All Churches" on NBC.

Richard Himber, maestro of the CBS "Monday Night Show," has stirred up plenty of melody and laurels for his thirty years. Plenty of brains behind his skyrocketing to fame... Speaking of fame—those DeVore Sisters on "Vocal Varieties" via NBC are due for plenty of it. Critics hail them as the best sister team on the air.

Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, long absent from the airwaves, return early next fall in a series of weekly half hour programs... Year's contract reported to call for a $10,000 weekly paycheck... Norris "Abner" Goff of "Lum and Abner," has just bought a six-hole golf course which adjoined his property in Hollywood.

Joan Blaine, "Valiant Lady" serial star, is mulling over two Broadway stage offers... Bob Burns is laying away his barooka for a vacation from the Bing Crosby show... Crosby himself rests for eight weeks this summer when the same Robin Burns will be in charge of the Thursday night Music Hall proceedings... Likewise, Edgar Bergen will be tucking Charley McCarthy away in the suitcase Charley calls home ere long for a two weeks' rest from microphones. Don't be surprised if W. C. Fields chooses that particular time to sneak back to the coffee program while the "little nipper" is in his satchel.

Richard Himber

Lola Hutchinson, 16-year-old singer from Wichita, Kansas, who made her first radio appearance on NBC networks a few weeks ago, already has been tagged a comer... The Friday night "Song Shop" on CBS is scheduled to fade June 10... Benny Goodman is studying European boat sailings... The Monday "Radio Theater" shutters its doors July 11 for a summer lull, reopening Sept. 11... Linda Lee, do-lovely Ripley warbler, is homesick for New-leens... Jan Garber, who checks off Burns & Allen, July 4, may be featured in his own program, "What Do You Know About Movies?"... Walter King, Eddie Cantor's announcer, has scored as a singer on the show... Jim (Fibber McGee) Jordan plenty proud of daughter, Kathryn, high-school grad this month.

Children's Day was observed at the Church last Sunday morning with a large attendance. Four children were baptized: Clayton Leonard, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Barnett; Donald James, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Barnett; Ida Grace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Worster; John Philip, son of Rev. and Mrs. John Manter.

The girls' 4-H Club met with Miss Arlene Judkins at her home Saturday afternoon.

Phyllis Barnett spent last week with her aunt, Mrs. Katharine Abbott, in Bangor. Her aunt returned with her Sunday to spend two weeks at the Abbott House.

Albert Judkins has returned from the University of Maine for the summer vacation.

Howard Douglass was in Orono Saturday.

Mrs. B. L. Judkins spent a few days with her sister in Norway, but has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Abbott of Norway spent the week-end with relatives in town.

Grant Once Ready to Quit

During the Civil war, Ulysses S. Grant once packed his belongings and was ready to start for home. He felt, as he told William T. Sherman, that he was in the way. But Sherman talked him into staying.

North Newry

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard L. Marsh of Waltham, Mass., are staying at Poplar Tavern.

Mrs. Grace Kilgore was a recent visitor at Frank Benntt's.

Mrs. Ella Brown, who has been ill several weeks, was able to ride out Sunday. Even though she is able to be up and out some she isn't very strong yet.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Wight went to Errol, N. H., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Ferren of Rumford were callers at L. E. Wight's Sunday afternoon.

Miss Vada Enman went to Andover Sunday, where she will spend several weeks with her father, Dave Enman.

The young people of the "Umbagog Larger Parish" enjoyed a scavenger hunt Friday night.

Middle Intervale

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Fales spent a few days with Mrs. Fales' father, B. W. Kimball, last week.

Harold Bartlett has bought the old Reed place recently owned by Herbert Winslow, and has moved his family there to live.

Ernest Buck and family and Victor Brooks spent Sunday at Mr. Buck's camp at Umbagog Lake.

Archie Buck was at Swan's Hill for the week-end.

Yvonne Baker spent a few days with her sister, Mrs. Augustus Carter, recently.

Gould Loses to Fryeburg in 11 Inning Game

In a brilliant mound duel between Locke of Fryeburg and McFarland of Gould, Fryeburg Academy copped the Western Maine Conference Championship by scoring one run in the 11th inning. It was a great game from start to finish with sparkling play contributed by Robertson and Brown. Adams was the batting hero of the game, the only man on either team to get three hits. He figured in both of Gould's tallies, Small, with a triple and single, and Winslow with two singles were the batting leaders for the winners.

INTERESTING ADDRESSES AT CONG. MEETING TUESDAY

About 70 members and ministers of the Congregational churches of Oxford County met in the Bethel Church for their annual Association meeting on Tuesday. Rev. Herbert T. Wallace, the retiring moderator, presided. Most of the morning session was devoted to business matters. Then followed a most interesting address by Rev. Wallace Anderson, the new minister of State Street Church, Portland, on "The Significance of the Struggle between Church and State in Modern Germany." Mr. Anderson told of his own visits in Germany in 1934 and 1937 and of what he had seen of the conflict being waged between the Protestant churches there and the threat of Nazi domination. He warned his hearers of the danger that might threaten our own churches if we lose sight of our first and supreme duty to God and consent to the interference of any outside authority.

After a fine luncheon served by a committee of the Ladies Club there was a discussion of the Young People's work in the County and State, led by Merton K. Clifford of South Paris and Mrs. John Hunt of Mexico. This was followed by a strong address by Rev. Frederick W. Smith, Superintendent of the Christian Civic League of Maine. The meeting closed with a Communion Service conducted by Rev. John Hunt.

Philip F. Stone of Norway, for 14 years the efficient scribe of the Association, was released at his own request from that office and given a rising vote of thanks by the meeting and at the same time made moderator for the ensuing year. Merton K. Clifford, South Paris, was made scribe. The fall meeting of the Association was appointed to be held with the First Church, Norway.
